

GARRISON McBRIDE

Super-Premium

Often it has been said, “If I could only control the weather”. In the northern regions of California, the weather is so good that one wonders what could be done to improve upon it. The rain falls only in winter. At the same time, the snow falls in the mountains, locking up water that will melt and fill the rivers during the summer. Warm, sunny summer days are cooled at night by the fog pouring in from the ocean. Rows of lush grapes unhampered by foul weather slowly mature to their optimum potential. A vineyard just couldn’t be happier.
